FOR

EDNA HARRIS MITCHELL:

Through her dedication to people she shaped fine adults from a formless mass called Youth.

Through her dedication to purpose she knew not of time's relentless passing.

Through her dedication to progress she moved little beginnings to great endings.

Through our dedication to her she will live on into immortality.

EDNA CORNELIA (HARRIS) MITCHELL
December 10, 1901 — August 8, 1963
Educator

TO THE CLASS OF 1964:

As you go forth from these halls, many things travel with you: the faith and sacrifice of parents and guardians: the confidence and work of instructors; your own knowledge of whether you discharged as best you could the privileges and responsibilities of stewardship during your undergraduate career.

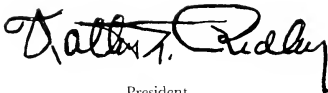

If you reflect upon and assess these things as you seek and attain more maturity, you will enter upon the true significance of a Commencement: a point where thinking youth start their journey into a future of thoughtful resourceful, constructive adulthood.

But this is no easy process. Orderly, constructive, positive thought processes perhaps represent man's most difficult endeavor. Conflicting issues buffet the intellect. Choices of loyalty strain the psyche. Exigencies of daily living present ostensible cross-currents to the canons of ideals.

Yet the thoughtful person, the positive, constructive, clear-headed person who would seek how best and most he can be of help to his fellow man has constantly these problems to overcome: has constantly to seek the wisdom, and consult his God, for strength to find partial answers. That person who fails to do these things fails his heritage and his supporters: worse, himself.

It is the sincere hope of Mrs. Ridley and myself that the Class of 1964 will recognize some of these basic problems of our time: will want to cope with them; will ultimately be among those citizens of our State and Nation most highly respected because of the truly creative and entirely honorable methods of problem-alleviation which they helped to develop.

I extend a salute to the Class. I speak a prayer for its safe, good journey through the larger life.

The Lighthouse

The Lighthouse program is designed to aid all students in their development of cultural interest and intellectual maturity.

It provides opportunities for students and staff to make new friends and to participate in group activities.

Through these experiences, students are aided in gaining self-discipline, recognition and pride in and for their own accomplishments. Concomitantly there is the possibility for development of true appreciation of the accomplishments of their fellow students.

In its broadest sense, then, The Lighthouse seeks to help develop better human relations amid the College Family.
